TIME AND METHOD OF IDENTIFICATION.

There are 10 adult dogs, That do not have an approved method of identification. The licensee is using microchips as an official identification, the chips have changed and her reader does not read the new available chips. The dogs do have a tattoo for ID, this tattoo is not an approved tattoo code issued by USDA.

Official identification for each dog is needed to insure that each animals identity can be known with certainty and to facilitate inspection process and proper record keeping.

Licensee must ensure that each regulated animal has proper identification.
