2.40(b)(3)

ATTENDING VETERINARIAN AND ADEQUATE VETERINARY CARE (DEALERS AND EXHIBITORS).

Two aged camels, Came and Sanchi, are arthritic and seem sore and reluctant to move. They haven't been evaluated by a veterinarian for this to determine if treatment is necessary.

Arthritis is common in older animals, and there may be options for treatment to help the animals be more comfortable. These animals should be evaluated and treated as determined appropriate by the Attending Veterinarian (AV).

Three adult donkeys are obese, with heavily crested necks and excess fat along the back and rump. At least two of them have misshapen front hooves consistent with chronic founder. None appear to be lame at this time. A female orphan foal with the jenny by the house appears to be unthrifty; she looks thin and has a scruffy haircoat. It is reported that none of these have been evaluated by the AV for these conditions. Obesity in donkeys predisposes them to various health problems like laminitis. Acute laminitis is not only painful, it can be life-threatening. A management plan to reduce weight to reduce the risk of obesity-related health problems needs to be formulated with the AV. The foal needs to be evaluated to determine if intervention is necessary to help improve her health status.

Correct by 11/27/2015.

FACILITIES, GENERAL.

The shelter in the enclosure housing four camels behind the house is damaged so that several sheet metal panels are bowed out, exposing sharp edges that could injure the animals. Repairing the panels and reinforcing the interior to prevent further damage will help prevent injury to the animals.

Correct in 30 days, by 12/13/2015.

The inspection and exit briefing were conducted with a facility representative. An additional briefing was conducted with the licensee per telephone on 11/13/2015.
