3.125(a)

Facilities, general.

The hotwire around a large tree inside the tiger enclosure was not attached to the energizer, the top hotwire at the tiger back gate had an overgrowth of vines behind it, and the placement of the hotwire at the lion back gate left an approximately 1.5 ft gap between the hotwire and the high chain link fence. Maintenance of hotwire to ensure safety and containment of animals is necessary for protection of the animals. The facility must ensure that the hotwire is maintained in good repair.

The water tanks at the aoudad and fallow deer enclosures included drop in water heaters with electric cords that were not protected from contact with the animals. Damage to electrical cords by animals may result in injury. The facility must ensure that equipment used to provide potable water protects the animals from injury.

Plastic screening used to prevent the Lady Ross turacos from going through the larger outer wire of the winter enclosure was torn and ripped off the wall in two sections of over one ft in length each. Materials used to contain animals must be maintained in good repair to prevent injury from incidents such as accidental entanglement or ingestion. The facility must ensure that enclosures are maintained to protect animals.

Feeding.

Two of the giraffe feeders had buildups of diet supplements in the bottom that appeared as hard accretions stuck to the corners, preventing thorough cleaning of the feeders. Food receptacles must be thoroughly cleaned to prevent contamination or deterioration of food. The facility must ensure that the feeders are adequately cleaned and sanitized as necessary to ensure the animals' diet is not affected.
