Type: ROUTINE INSPECTION

3.75(c)(1)(ii)

HOUSING FACILITIES, GENERAL.

Components of the primary enclosures housing squirrel monkeys were rusted, creating sharp edges. These areas included the platform over the entry door and a horizontal support member of a partition wall. Additionally, a drain cover was missing in another enclosure housing a non-human primate.

No animals were affected at the time of the inspection.

Sharp edges can cause cuts or other injuries to the animals. An animal might be injured or an appendage entrapped due to the missing drain cover.

All affected areas must be repaired and a system of maintenance of enclosures and facilities should be in place to prevent injuries to the housed animals.
