3.80(a)(2)(ii)

Primary enclosures.

At time of the inspection, there were exposed electric cords for heating pads extending into the shelter boxes for 1 bushbaby and 2 marmoset enclosures. The heating pads were plugged in at the time and one has frayed edges that indicates the animal may have chewed it. Exposed electrical cords pose a risk of injury to the animal if they bite into the cord. A method must developed to prevent the animals from coming in direct contact with the electric cords to protect the animals from injury.
