Outdoor housing facilities.

There is an inadequate public barrier for the outdoor primary enclosure housing 2 adult ring-tailed lemurs. The shortest distance measured between a corner of the exhibit and the public barrier is 32 inches. The public barrier is a split wood rail fence that comes to about hip height to the inspector. The inspector was able to reach out and touch the open weave metal wire paneling of the enclosure where the animals were sitting on a perch on the inside corner. A member of the public would be able to stick their fingers inside the enclosure. Failure to have an adequate barrier between the public and a fixed outdoor exhibit for nonhuman primates may result in harm to the animals or the general public. Fixed public exhibits housing nonhuman primates, such as zoos, must have a barrier between the primary enclosure and the public at any time the public is present, in order to restrict physical contact between the public and the nonhuman primates.

Correct by 7 April 2025.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the facility representative.
