Contingency planning.

A documented contingency plan was not available for review during the inspection.

If an emergency or natural disaster were to occur at the facility, the lack of a written contingency plan could impact animal health if the licensee is not prepared to respond to the situation appropriately.

Dealers must develop, document, and follow an appropriate contingency plan to provide for the humane handling, treatment, transportation, housing, and care of their animals in the the event of an emergency or disaster.

Sanitation.

The guinea pig buildings need a general cleaning. The walls and areas between the enclosures have an accumulation of dust and spider webs. On the floors, around the guinea pig enclosures in the barn, there is an accumulation of hay and bedding material.

It's important to keep animal buildings and grounds clean and in good repair to ensure the health of the animals and to minimize odors and pests.

The premise, including building and grounds, shall be kept clean and in good repair in order to protect the animals from injury and to facilitate the prescribed husbandry practices.
