2.36(b)(6)

Annual report.

The incorrect species common name was listed in the FY 2022 annual report as Black-footed ferret (an endangered species), whereas the actual species on hand and in use for Category D research was domestic ferret. It was determined that research staff understood the animals to be domestic ferrets when working with them. Incorrectly identifying species used in research on records can lead to clerical errors and misunderstanding when reporting to Congress and the American public. On the annual report, research facilities shall state the correct common names of animals upon which research tests were conducted involving accompanying pain or distress to the animal and for which appropriate anesthetic, analgesic or tranquilizing drugs were used.

Correct by submitting an amended FY 2022 annual report to USDA APHIS Animal Care by 28 July 2023.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representatives.
