Facilities, outdoor

Several of the birds observed housed outdoors today need improved shelter from inclement weather.

*The turkeys (two) and pheasants (five) have a high roof over their permanent outdoor enclosures providing shade but they lack shelter from wind, cold and precipitation that might be wind blown into their enclosures.

*Two of the parrots housed outdoors during the day in the aviary were on perches that did not have any shade at the time of inspection. The shade cloth over the aviary did not cover the area where these perches were placed.

Lack of shelter from inclement weather may cause distress to the birds and may have a negative impact on their physical condition.

All outdoor housing facilities for birds must provide shelter from inclement weather.

Correct by 11/15/23.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representatives and the licensee.
