Housing facilities, general.

At the time of inspection about two feet of an electrical cord for a wall mounted heating and cooling unit inside the shelter portion of the enclosure for "Marquee", a ringtail lemur, was no longer secure. This unit has an electrical cord running from the unit over to the electrical outlet next to it. The cord was plugged into the electrical outlet and was coiled and hanging away from the wall. A slight residue was observed on the surface of the cord. The electrical cord hanging out in this manner presents the risk of entanglement injury, electrocution injury, and is a potential fire hazard. The housing facilities for nonhuman primates must be designed and constructed so they protect the animals from injury. During the exit interview, a long-term fix was discussed by the facility of providing this unit with a safety cover similar to the safety covers on many of the other units throughout the facility.

To be corrected by: Corrected during the inspection, January 31, 2024.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representative.
