3.131(d)

Sanitation.

A large infestation of flies was observed in both the gestation and commercial rooms located on the north side of the swine unit. Dozens of flies were observed in multiple pens and were observed to be present on hogs, feeders and pen barriers in the rooms.

Flies can be a vector for transmission of animal diseases. Large numbers of flies may also cause undue stress and discomfort to animals held in confinement. The facility needs to ensure that a safe and effective program for the control of flies and other insect pests is established and maintained in all regulated animal housing areas.
