3.162(b)(1)

Primary enclosures used to transport live birds.

While the primary enclosures used to transport raptors feature ventilation openings, they do not comprise an adequate surface area of the enclosure walls. Inadequate ventilation during transport may compromise respiration and cause undue stress. When featured on 2 walls, ventilation openings must comprise at least 16% of the total surface area of each such wall; when featured on 4 walls, openings must comprise 8% of the total surface area of each such wall.

Correct by September 6, 2024, or prior to transport.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted at a New York State Fair exhibition. The inspection and exit interview were conducted with a facility representative.
