2.40(b)(3) DIRECT

ATTENDING VETERINARIAN AND ADEQUATE VETERINARY CARE (DEALERS AND EXHIBITORS).

The kangaroo is ill. His head is tilted approximately 90 degrees (rotational torticollis). He appears weak and moves slowly. He frequently falls over and has difficulty righting himself. The licensee stated that he seemed to start off with vision problems and has been getting progressively worse over a couple of months, and that the Attending Veterinarian (AV) had not yet been consulted.

The veterinarian must be promptly notified of problems of animal health in order to address them in a timely manner to reduce animal discomfort and avoid suffering.

Corrected: The AV was called and assessed the animal on the day of inspection.

3.125(a)

FACILITIES, GENERAL.

The metal siding of the barn in the camel shelter has been damaged and bent, exposing sharp edges.

All surfaces that the animals might contact must be kept in good repair to avoid injury to the animals.

Correction: The handyman was notified at the time of inspection, and the licensee reported that it was corrected the same day.

The inspection and exit briefing were conducted in person and per telephone with the licensees.
