Requirements and application.

At time of inspection at Dellosso Farms in Lathrop, California, they did not possess a valid USDA license to exhibit animals. Dellosso Farms canceled its previous license as it had only been exhibiting farms animals, but a Plains Zebra was on exhibit during the inspection. A Zebra is considered exotic hoof stock requiring a license. Conducting unlicensed activity of regulated animals does not allow for appropriate oversight and enforcement of the Animal Welfare Act. No person shall operate as a dealer or exhibitor without a valid license. Correct by obtaining an appropriate license.
