2.134(a)

Contingency planning.

The facility does not currently have a written contingency plan in place indicating the steps to take in case of emergencies that could affect the animals and facility. A contingency plan is necessary to ensure that animals are provided with humane handling, treatment, transportation, housing, and care in the event of an emergency or disasters.

Dealers, exhibitors, intermediate handlers, and carriers must develop, document, and follow an appropriate plan to provide for the humane handling, treatment, transportation, housing, and care of their animals in the event of an emergency or disaster (one which could reasonably be anticipated and expected to be detrimental to the good health and well-being of the animals in their possession).

Environment enhancement to promote psychological well-being.

Enrichments are present and utilized for all birds present. However, the written environmental enhancement plan for birds is not currently in place. Enrichment plans are necessary to provide guidance about how to enrich bird housing environments. The written plan must be followed ensure that the birds are provided with enrichments that will promote their psychological well-being.

Dealers, exhibitors, and research facilities must develop, document, and follow a species-appropriate plan for environment enhancement adequate to promote the psychological well-being of birds. The plan must be approved by the attending veterinarian and must be in accordance with the regulations in this subpart and with currently accepted professional standards as cited in appropriate professional journals or reference guides.
