Records: Dealers and exhibitors.

The licensee did not have acquisition records for the pigs purchased this year. She stated that the records were being held by her accountant and would not be available for the inspection.

It's important to maintain records, which fully and correctly disclose the acquisition information for all animals purchased, in order to accurately track animals being used in regulated activities and to ensure their humane care.

The licensee must maintain records which include the required acquisition information and have them available for review during inspection.
