Primary enclosures.

A social media post shows a ring-tailed lemur hanging from a loosely mounted ceiling fan. Licensee verified that she allows the lemur to climb on the ceiling fan and did post the video on social media. A ceiling fan is not an appropriate climbing structure for a non-human primate as it could fall from the ceiling and cause serious harm or injury. Primary enclosures must be designed and constructed to protect the non-human primate from injury. Correct by April 13, 2023.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the licensee.
