Facilities, general.

There is a refridgerator that contains meat(Chicken,fish,mice) and other food items used for the regulated animals that have a buildup of old blood or dirt/debris on several shelf/wall surfaces. The freezer of this refridgerator and a stand up freezer have been filled to capacity with frost, food and nonfood products. Both freezers need to be defrosted and cleaned with the non-eatable items removed and all contents cleaned and checked for deterioration.

The buildup of old blood/liquids from thawing food items can cause contamination or spoilage of the food products for the regulated animals. The buildup of frost and over packing of the freezers can cause the food items to not freeze completely or fast enough to prevent the buildup of bacteria in the food items which could cause possible health issues if eaten by the regulated animals. A regular cleaning and defrosting should be done on all food storage refridgerators/freezers.

Supplies of food and bedding shall be stored in facilities which adequately protect such supplies against deterioration, molding, or contamination by vermin.
