FACILITIES, OUTDOOR.

The wood shelter in the pasture housing a large adult cow and goats is not large enough to protect these animals from over heating, discomfort, and the direct sunlight. The large cow was observed during the inspection moving towards the goats that were too close under this shelter. These goats moved on the side of the shelter to obtain shade. The 18 goats and cow do not have enough space under this shelter to stand or lay comfortably and without conflict to obtain shade. When sunlight is likely to cause overheating or discomfort of the animals, sufficient shade by natural or artificial means shall be provided to allow all animals kept outdoors to protect themselves from direct sunlight.

TO BE CORRECTED IMMEDIATELY.

FACILITIES, OUTDOOR.

The current wood shelter for the goats and large adult cow does not provide adequate protection for all the animals from the heavy rains and winds at one time. During this inspection the cow was under this shelter and moved towards several goats to push them out of the shelter. Several goats were standing on the edges of the shelter to keep away from the cow. Shelter shall be provided for all animals kept outdoors to afford them protection and to prevent discomfort to such animals. During the previous inspection and this inspection it was discussed that adding several cement culverts as the other goat enclosure would protect the animals from inclement weather. This non compliance was cited during the April 4, 2017, and May 10, 2016, inspection.

FEEDING.

The roll of hay placed on the ground in the goat and cow pasture does not have a cover over it to protect it from the heavy rains in the summer, standing water, excreta from pests and mold. Contaminated hay can cause respiratory illness, parasites, and other illnesses and diseases. Goats can quickly contract Listeria, "goat polio," and other brain-stem diseases from moldy hay. Food being fed to these animals need to be protected from contamination to maintain all animals in good health. This non compliance was cited during the April 4, 2017 and May 10, 2016,

WATERING.

The pasture housing goats has dirty water and receptacle lined with a thick brown and green substance. This dirty drinking water is not potable and can cause illness, parasites and other diseases. Potable water must be provided as often as necessary for the health and comfort of the animal. Water receptacles must be kept clean and sanitary at all times. This non-compliance was cited during the April 4, 2017, and May 16, 2016, inspections.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the licensee.
