ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF REGULATIONS AND STANDARDS.

Several puppies younger than 6 months old were imported from Colombia without documentation and/or justification showing animals were intended for research or veterinary treatment. Under USDA rules, you cannot import a dog younger than 6 months old into the United States for resale or adoption and must have a justification to import them at that age for research or veterinary treatment. All dogs imported for any of those purposes must have a valid vaccination against rabies, have certain other vaccinations, a veterinary health certificate and not show signs of disease on import. The registrant must only import puppies of proper age by following USDA rules.
