3.82(a)

Feeding.

At least three oranges stored in the fridge used to feed the black-handed spider monkeys were discolored (becoming darker) and showing signs of spoilage. The licensee indicated he knew they were going bad. Spoiled food is not wholesome or palatable to the animals and can make them sick if they were to eat these oranges. Discolored oranges should be discarded once they start showing signs of spoilage. Correct starting on 8/6/25.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the licensee.

End of report.
