Environment enhancement to promote psychological well-being.

There are no swings or perches present for the spider monkey in the indoor enclosure. This enclosure is used during cold and winter months. The environmental enhancement plan for non-human primates on file states that the spider monkey will be provided with swings or perches to allow the animal to brachiate. Housing facilities need to provide opportunities for animals to express species typical locomotion to promote their health and psychological well-being. Licensee must ensure that the spider monkey is provided with the ability to brachiate with such items as swings or perches. Correct by January 19, 2023.

This inspection was conducted with the owner's wife and the exit interview was conducted with the licensee.
