2.131(d)(2)

Handling of animals.

There were areas in the facility where the public was potentially able to make contact with the enclosed animals without any attendants present.

- A group of whitetail fawns in the front yard have no public barrier to prevent being approached and contacted by members of the public.
- A male kangaroo in the front yard has a barrier around most of his enclosure, but the gate and section next to the gate are not protected. Members of the public could access his enclosure fence and possibly interact with him.
- The coatimundis in the side yard next to the entrance have public barriers, but those barriers are close enough to the enclosure fence to allow members of the public to easily reach into the enclosure fence.

All regulated animals must be protected from public contact unless facility attendants are present and observing guest interactions. The facility must ensure that all animals have appropriate public barriers, or that all animals are being properly observed by easily identifiable attendants.

Correct by 19 July 2024

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representative.
