FACILITIES, GENERAL.

The primary enclosure fence for the sheep currently held in quarantine is not structurally sound. A tree fell on the perimeter fence as well as the enclosure fence destroying the fence sections. Damage to the fences may allow the animals to escape their enclosure or allow unwanted animals in. The fence shall be repaired to protect the sheep and hold them securely within their enclosure. Correct by September 10, 2018;

There is another section of fence that was damaged by a tree in the corner on the right side of the gate near the dumpster. The large pigs are allowed access to this section to allow them access to additional shade. The fence is no longer structurally sound and may allow the pigs to leave their enclosure. The fence shall be repaired to maintain the pigs securely within their enclosure and prevent access from unwanted animals. Correct by September 10, 2018.

I observed a goat jump on a raised stand that was leaning and wobbly. The stand wobbled enough that the goat jumped off. The legs of the stand were becoming detached which would allow the stand to fall and possibly cause the goats to become injured. The stand shall be removed, repaired, or replaced to protect the goats from injury. Correct by September 3, 2018.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the facility representative.
