3.15(a)(6)

Primary enclosures used to transport live dogs and cats.

On December 17, 2025, a primary transport enclosure containing an adult terrier was inspected in the animal holding area prior to being loaded on an aircraft at San Diego International Airport. The transport enclosure did not have any labels indicating the correct upright position of the enclosure. Failure to appropriately mark primary enclosures used in transport may result in delayed response in the event of an emergency or improper care of animals when handling or moving the enclosure.

When an enclosure is not permanently affixed to the transport conveyance, it must be clearly marked with arrows or some other labeling indicating the correct upright position of the enclosure.

3.17(c)

Food and water requirements.

On December 17, 2025, a primary transport enclosure containing an adult terrier was inspected in the animal holding area prior to being loaded onto an aircraft at San Diego International Airport enroute to Toronto, Canada. Upon inspection the dog appeared to be in good health and securely contained within its primary enclosure, however there was no food or water dish affixed to the carrier. Transporting animals without food or water receptacles can compromise the carrier's ability to ensure adequate food and water is provided for the animal's health and well-being while transported. Failure to provide adequate food and water may be distressful and can have serious impacts on the health and well-being of the dog.

Carriers must not accept a dog for transport without food and water receptacles securely attached inside the primary enclosure and placed so that the receptacles can be filled from outside the enclosure without opening the door.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with a facility representative.
