Facilities, general.

On 26 April 2026, a Harris' antelope squirrel was found to sustain a non-life threatening bleeding injury to the right foot from the metal exercise wheel in their enclosure. The animal received veterinary treatment and the exercise wheel was replaced with a safer designed plastic structure. Housing animals in facilities not appropriate for the species may result in injuries. The indoor housing facilities shall be structurally sound and constructed of materials appropriate for the animals to protect them from injury. Corrected prior to inspection.

Correct from this date forward of 11 September 2026.

Critical

Facilities, general.

On 02 July 2026, an adult cedar waxwing was found deceased and trapped between the interior shade screen and metal fencing of an outdoor enclosure. The facility had notified the inspector of the event and removed the shade screen from the enclosure housing additional birds. The bird's necropsy report listed trauma as the first possible diagnosis. Not providing housing for birds that protects them from injury can result in circumstances leading to death. Housing facilities for birds must be designed, constructed and maintained in good repair so that they protect the birds from injury. Corrected prior to inspection.

Correct from this date forward of 11 September 2026.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the facility representatives.
