3.131(d)

Sanitation.

During the facilities walk-through, there were four enclosures with an excessive amount of flies both covering and flying around the food (fruit) of the porcupines contained within. There were male and female pairs in each of the enclosures, which included four African Crested Porcupines and two Indian Crested Porcupines — of which you could hear the swarming sound from the flies.

Failing to maintain an effective pest control program can result in insects congregating around food sources/animal areas, adversely affecting sanitation and increasing the potential for contamination or attraction of additional pests, all of which could negatively impact the health and well-being of the animals. A safe and effective program for the control of insects, ectoparasites, and avian and mammalian pests shall be established and maintained.
