2.40(b)(3)

Attending veterinarian and adequate veterinary care (dealers and exhibitors).

An APHIS official observed one male Highland cattle with a noticeably thin body condition. This animal was housed in the same primary enclosure with two other Highland cattle, including a littermate with an appropriate body condition. According to facility representatives, this condition had not been noted prior to the inspection; therefore, this condition had not been communicated to the attending veterinarian. A thin body condition can indicate underlying disease or nutritional deficiencies. The facility must ensure that animals are observed daily for their health and well-being and that problems of animal health, well-being, and behavior are conveyed to the attending veterinarian in a timely manner. To be corrected by October 16, 2026.

Separation.

An APHIS official observed one female Patagonian cavy with multiple scabs on the back near the base of the tail and one female Patagonian cavy with a smaller number of scabs on the back, in mixed-sex housing with 18 other cavies. According to facility representatives, this has happened previously and may be caused by altercations between animals or breeding behavior, but they have not made adjustments to mitigate the social incompatibility. Incompatibility between animals may result in wounds or other health impacts such as those observed in the two Patagonian cavies. The facility must ensure that animals housed in the same primary enclosure are compatible. To be corrected by October 16, 2026.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representatives.
